

#metoo

You may be aware of this hashtag circulating over social media. It is a powerful movement of people (mostly women) speaking up about sexual harassment & sexual assault. Unfortunately, some of our teens have experienced unwanted sexual comments, touching and assault.

This past week, Lambrick Park has had some #metoo messages in one of our girls' bathrooms over a couple of days. I have spoken with some of the girls about taking that message off the walls in the girls' bathroom to a legitimate space in our school community.

The result of this conversation is that we will be forming a steering committee made up interested Lambrick students who will plan an awareness campaign for the end of November. This campaign will include opportunities for safe discussions.

As a school, we had already been planning Safe Teen, level 1 workshops for our students (<http://www.safeteen.ca/secondary/>). We will work to coordinate these events under the same umbrella.

I invite you to open up the #metoo conversation with your child. Please feel free to share your comments and concerns with me.
